

The Reverend Jack Stapleton

Reverend Stapleton is the Rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Greeley, Colorado. In 1994, he established the St. Aidan Trust in the United States, now the Community of St. Aidan and Hilda. It serves as a resource for Christians who seek the balanced spirituality and the gentle yet passionate evangelism that characterized the Celtic saints.

Third Annual Celebration of Celtic Spirituality

YOU ARE INVITED

to the third annual Celebration of Celtic Spirituality. The celebration will be a one-day retreat concluding with a Celtic Eucharist service. There will also be a Celtic Eucharist service on Sunday, September 28.

This year, the Reverend Jack Stapleton will be the workshop leader. He will explore how the spiritual insights and practices of Celtic Christianity can renew the modern church and the individual seeker. The Celtic church affirmed a way of life which included such practices as care for creation, simplicity of lifestyle, spiritual pilgrimage, and healing of fragmented peoples and communities.

Come join us and experience the wonder of listening for God's voice in a setting believed by many to be a place where the line between spiritual and physical worlds runs particularly thin.
